WINES WITH PERSONALITY

2006 Burgundy Vintage Report

Global warming? Maybe. The growing seasons in Burgundy certainly seem to be warming up and 2006 was no exception.

Glorious weather in June and July raised expectations but a rather wet and cool August set things back a bit. There was a risk of rot but, luckily, the good weather of June and July meant that the grapes were healthy and the impact of potential rot was reduced. September saw a return to warm, dry weather and the harvest took place in good conditions.
